Allen Corporation of America Names Amanda Donley as Vice President, Logistics Services Division

Fairfax, VA – February 1, 2021 – Allen Corporation of America, Inc. today announced the promotion of Amanda M. Donley to Vice President of its Logistics Services Division.

A ten-year veteran of the company, Ms. Donley's leadership has contributed to the successful performance of contracts supporting Allen's U.S. Army and Department of Defense customers. She was named as Director of the Logistics Services Division in 2018. In that role Ms. Donley met aggressive contract recruitment and training goals as well as diversifying Allen's customer base with many U.S. Air Force, Army, and other DoD wins. Ms. Donley served in Operation Iraqi Freedom where, as a Transportation Officer in the US Army, she provided truck and terminal transport support, deploying with the 7th Transportation Group to Kuwait Naval Base. Ms. Donley is a graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

Kevin C. Vaughey, Allen Corporation's President and CEO said, "It is with great pride that we recognize Amanda's leadership and accomplishments with this well-deserved promotion. Amanda is dedicated to mission success and excellence in customer service and instills these values in her division."

For over thirty years, the Logistics Services Division has been a leader in providing tactical sustainment solutions to the U.S. military. The division provides software sustainment support services, supply services, and transportation services throughout the continental United States.
